Ireland has just held a referendum on the Treaty of Lisbon; a majority voted in favour of Ireland ratifying the treaty.

From what you know, if a UK referendum were held on whether or not to ratify this Treaty how would you vote?

If the Treaty comes into effect, the EU will have a President who will chair major EU meetings and represent the EU at major gatherings around the world. One possible candidate for this post is Tony Blair, the former Prime Minister. There are other possible candidates from other countries.

Should Britain's government support or oppose Mr Blair becoming President of the EU?

If Britain wanted to amend or repeal the Treaty once it had been ratified, it would need to seek agreement from all other EU member states.

Assuming unanimous opposition to the Treaty would be difficult to achieve, Britain may be left with two choices. Firstly, to accept the Lisbon Treaty as it is, and secondly to leave the EU altogether.

With that in mind do you think a Conservative government should or should not offer a referendum on the Treaty to UK voters once it is ratified?

Yes they should offer a referendum	60	77	41	61	62	57	44	65	67	60	59	58	64	58	57	59
